

Your Leadership Lab

"He who has never learned to obey cannot be a good commander" Aristotle

What we have learned through experience about leaders is that they are busy! Whether they are future leaders and are part of a talent pipeline, or whether they are current leaders needing navigation for the best way forward in turbulent times, whether their leadership requires some customisation for unique industry challenges, or whether there is a specific context to the leadership conversations, we have created a perfect structure for truly engaging with leadership. We have strategically planned the structure of a 10-week process whereby delegates are only required to be in contact with the facilitator for 60 to 90-minutes at a time over a 10 week period, so that delegates can benefit from the depth of conversation over 10 weeks whilst not having to take too much time out of their productive work day. In the 10 weeks, delegates will be exposed to presentations, group-coaching sessions, and conversations around case studies relevant to their industry; and will be given articles to read or perhaps even small assignments to complete in between conversations. This allows for the sharing of information, the assimilation of that information for individuals; and discussion time, which results in practical application and sustainability.

In compliment to this journey, we can also provide on-line coaching through the use of an internationally accredited personal development assessment.
